How the Rhinoceros Got His Skin & How the Camel Got His Hump

Read by Jack Nicholson • Original Music by Bobby McFerrin

These familiar favorites from Rudyard Kipling feature the tale of a Parsee man who seeks revenge on a nasty rhino followed by the story of a lazy camel who learns the hard way that pride and arrogance are never a good combination.

How the Leopard Got His Spots

Read by Danny Glover • Original Music by Ladysmith Black Mambazo

Hunting on the African plain was easy for the leopard since his light coat blended with the yellow hues of the landscape. But once all the animals moved to the striped and splotchy forest, things got much harder—so for his own survival he had to acquire spots. This tale is rich with subtle humor and enhanced by the gentle sounds of South African a cappella harmonies.

The Monkey People

Read by Raul Julia • Original Music by Lee Ritenour

Revisit this Colombian fable of a village in the Amazon jungle where the lazy inhabitants do nothing but lie in their hammocks. Then a mysterious man arrives one day and creates monkeys who do everything for the villagers. When the monkeys take on every human activity—including complaining—the humans have to deal with the serious and silly consequences of their inaction.
